More on the topic

You may read in the place of 'meaningful deep work' any of the following: time for studying further, time for writing, for painting or designing a new process, or just remembering what gives you courage and significance. Perhaps you are making a career change and you need time to strategise and execute new ideas.

Together we will embark on a journey, where Petro and Christian support you, to define your most important goal, to design and evolve your individual and successful Story Spiral towards it.

You can find more information on the Story Spiral and pig catching on an extra document and at www.playinmantis.net

More on the time structure

The online process will take 7 sessions over seven weeks to allow you to implement your Success Story from week to week, so it is a commitment.

We would like your permission to video record all the sessions. We would also like to use the material to populate the course and the book – keeping your identity confidential, of course.

Book now to secure your place by sending me an email petro@playingmantis.net

Who should attend?

Coaches, facilitators, game changers, thought leaders like you who can accept the following:

This is not a showcase or sales event geared to impress or win you over. If you come, you already believe that metaphor, embodiment, improvisation and imagination are powerful, fun ways to bring about transformation and you want to know more about using them in coaching and facilitation.

Experimentation and mistakes are part of the process. You must be willing to play with ideas that may not work or may be a bit uncomfortable, but that could lead to new heights of freedom and insight.

We're looking forward to being inspired by you. Oink!
